We invite you to join us for a wide-ranging presentation about the current state of technical issues affecting the U.S. roofing market. Our presenter is Mathew Dupuis, PhD PE, a Principal with SRI (Middleton, Wisconsin).

Matt is a licensed Professional Engineer in multiple states with over 17 years of experience. He currently is a Principal of SRI, a building envelope engineering firm in Middleton, WI. Matt's area of specialization lies within moisture movement, temperature modeling, solar reflectivity, roofing research and forensic failure analysis in the building envelope.

Matt has worked in the United States and internationally and his experience includes waterproofing and steep roof assemblies. Matt also develops and teaches course at the University of Wisconsin and has presented and written to roofing industry audiences on topics including roofing technology, related building codes, and roof temperatures. Matt is also a technical advisor to the both the National Roofing Contractors Association (NRCA) and the Midwest Roofing Contractors Association (MRCA) and is a voting member of the ASTM Committee D08 on Roofing and Waterproofing.
